Dear reader,

In this issue of Info Portugal is in the spotlight, since Lisbon is hosting the CEB's 2019 Joint Meeting on 4-5 July. Mr Mário Centeno, Portugal's Minister of Finance and currently also President of the Eurogroup, discusses in an interview the main social challenges facing Europe and how to address them.

Co-operation between the CEB and Portugal has been excellent and has covered several areas since the country became a member of the Bank in 1976. Migration has been one of these areas right from the start. Back in the 1970s, in the wake of Angola's and Mozambique's declarations of independence, the CEB supported Portugal's efforts to accommodate some 800,000 displaced persons or one-tenth of the country's entire population at the time. In 2019, the CEB still supports the reception and integration of migrants and refugees in Portugal.

Over the years, the CEB has provided financing to help Portugal respond to numerous additional challenges to social cohesion, such as population ageing, rising regional disparities, and climate change. In this issue, you will find details on two ongoing projects in the country: the refugee reception facilities in Loures and Lisbon, built with funding from the CEB-managed Migrant and Refugee Fund (MRF), and the integrated urban regeneration programme initiated under the Financial Instrument for Urban Rehabilitation and Revitalisation (IFRRU) 2020.

More recently, an additional half a billion euros in financing has been made available to Portugal for several projects in sectors such as environmental protection, social housing, and education.

In this issue you will also find an interview with the newly-appointed CEB Vice-Governor for Target Group Countries, Mr Tomáš Boček, who talks about his mandate and immediate priorities. Until recently, Mr Boček served as the Special Representative of the Secretary General of the Council of Europe on Migration and Refugees and brings with him a strong knowledge of migration and its challenges. He will also contribute to strengthening the institutional co-operation with the Council of Europe.

About the CEB...

Set up in 1956, the CEB (Council of Europe Development Bank) has 41 member states. As a major instrument of the policy of solidarity in Europe, the Bank finances social projects by making available resources raised in conditions reflecting the quality of its rating. It thus grants loans to its member states, to financial institutions and to local authorities for the financing of projects in the social sector, in accordance with its Articles of Agreement.

Portugal and the CEB

PORTUGAL

Capital: Lisbon

Population: 10.3 million

GDP per capita (IMF): $32,023

Area: 92,212 km²

Life expectancy: 81 years

Portugal became a member of the CEB on 1st August 1976. In this profile we showcase how the Bank has worked with the Government of Portugal and other key stakeholders to meet its changing challenges during the course of the past 43 years.

The early days

Portugal's cooperation with the CEB began in earnest soon after the country became a member of the Bank. In the mid '70s the country had to accommodate some 800,000 refugees – a tenth of Portugal's population – following declarations of independence by Angola and Mozambique.

Financial assistance from the CEB continued into the 1980s, alleviating the impact of earthquakes in the Azores and floods throughout Portugal. In the 1990s, the portfolio diversified into education, health, urban and rural social and environmental infrastructure, and social housing.

Over the past 20 years, the CEB has helped to mobilise more than €1.1 billion in strategic social investments for the benefit of more than 5 million people throughout Portugal.

Portugal today

Portugal is performing very well today. Its GDP is back to its pre-2008-crisis level. Supported by strong employment growth, the unemployment rate is 7% - the lowest in over 16 years. What's more, according to the European Commission's Spring 2019 Economic Forecast, private consumption and investment are expected to continue to drive Portugal's economic expansion.

Building a prosperous Portugal

The Portuguese Minister of Finance, Mário Centeno, talks to Info about his country's relationship with the CEB, its economic recovery, approach to green energy, and the challenges ahead for Europe.

Info: Portugal joined both the Council of Europe and the CEB in 1976. In 2019, Portugal is hosting the Bank's annual Joint Meeting. How do you see the cooperation between your country and the CEB?

MC: Portugal has been committed to the CEB since its adherence in 1976, supporting its high social impact mandate and its mission to actively promote social cohesion and integration.

Since 1994, Portugal has deepened its relationship with the Bank and benefitted from over €1 billion in financing to support investments in education, social housing, environment, MSMEs, and urban rehabilitation. Specifically, the €2.5 million-grant to the Portuguese Refugee Centre allocated by the Bank in 2016 has proven to be a timely support in view of Europe's refugee crisis. The Centre is up and running, and is able to host 90 people at a time, before their integration into society. This is one of the projects we will be visiting as part of the CEB's Joint Meeting in Lisbon this July.

We are very pleased to be hosting the 54th annual Joint Meeting of the Council of Europe Development Bank – the fifth time in Portugal and a first for Lisbon. Additionally, we welcome the seminar on social inclusion that will take place on July 4th – a topic that is key to CEB's investments and financing.

Info: Could you explain Portugal's social investment needs? Which of these could be met with the help of CEB financing?

MC: Some of Portugal's main investments are focused on infrastructure and equipment to improve the coverage and quality of public services, such as health – five new hospitals (East Lisbon, Seixal, Sintra, Alentejo and Madeira) – and education (human capital development and social cohesion). Other important investments aim to improve and expand the railroad and urban public transport infrastructure, ensuring greater mobility and therefore greater social cohesion, not neglecting the environmental concerns and the national goal of carbon neutrality in 2050.

Info: Economically, Portugal is performing very well today. Could you explain this economic recovery?

MC: The steady recovery of the Portuguese economy is grounded in lasting structural changes in skills, investment, export orientation, and in the labour market. Recent policy initiatives restored business and consumer confidence, included measures to strengthen the Portuguese financial system, to support domestic demand, and counter-cyclical, rigorous, and prudent management of public finances. All together, they have made great strides in addressing key structural weaknesses in the Portuguese economy and have thus helped to lay the foundations for a more resilient and prosperous economy.

Info: Portugal has been investing in renewable energy for a long time. Currently around 55-60% of total energy produced is green. What can other countries do to boost their renewable energy?

MC: The Portuguese energy strategy is focused on reducing our fossil dependence and meeting Europe's targets. Between 2010 and 2017, we increased renewable capacity by 42%. Wind became the second contributor, after hydroelectricity; now, our focus is to explore solar and photovoltaic energy, whose costs have been falling, and to prevent the additional burdening of consumers through a new tariffs model.

ageing, rising inequality, technological disruptions, and climate change. How it addresses these will have an important impact on social cohesion and political stability across the continent. What is the best way to tackle these challenges, and how might a social development bank such as the CEB help?

MC: Facing these challenges must be a priority at national and European levels. Measures promoting the younger generation's access to high quality education, and a higher labour force participation rate for older workers, are required. Also, fundamental matters are access to the healthcare system (including long-term care) and sustainable and redistributive pension systems.

Moreover, European leadership in tackling climate change is demanding. As policymakers, we must deploy the best financial instruments available to support quality investments and yield social and economic dividends in the future. The CEB's present working plan mirrors the primacy of sustainable and inclusive growth. In fact, the alignment of policies with the Paris Agreement goals needs to be socially inclusive. The response to these challenges is fundamental to guarantee social cohesion. Here, the CEB plays an important role, as the social development bank in Europe.

Welcoming refugees to Portugal

Photos: (C) Portuguese Refugee Council

In 2015, Portugal committed to welcome 10,300 refugees stationed in other countries in Europe – 5,800 more than the country's allocation under the EU's refugee quota system. The CEB has funded two new reception facilities for adults, families and unaccompanied minors, which are open and welcoming migrants and refugees.

The Portuguese Refugee Council is the operational partner of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees to Portugal. The Council is a non-profit organisation that manages reception facilities and provides asylum and integration support to refugees based on protocols signed with the Portuguese Government, namely the Ministry for Internal Affairs (MIA) and the Ministry for Solidarity, Employment and Social Security (MISESS). Refugees are directly referred to the Council by MIA as soon as they have submitted their asylum application, while integration efforts are coordinated with MISESS.

The challenge of numbers

In 2015 it was becoming clear that the Council's reception facilities didn't offer sufficient capacity or facilities, given the number of refugees who needed to be housed and catered for while their asylum applications were processed, and integration solutions defined. Alongside the number of refugees being received under the EU resettlement programmes, Portugal has also been experiencing an increase in the number of asylum seekers arriving in the country directly.

To solve the challenge, the CEB, through the Migrant and Refugee Fund (MRF), agreed to fund the construction of an additional reception centre in the Municipality of Loures for adults and families, and fund the extension of another centre in Lisbon for unaccompanied minors.

Creating sustainable centres

Design and preparatory works for the Loures centre began in the second half of 2016, and on-site work started a year later. The work to expand the centre in Lisbon was able to start earlier than planned.

The new centre in Loures can accommodate 90 people, and includes open spaces, meeting and training rooms, dining and living rooms, and a library. Solar panels offset electricity costs and reduce the building's carbon footprint. The centre is close to an existing facility, managed by the Council, which has access to sports grounds and a kindergarten.

In Lisbon, a new administrative block has been built adjacent to the existing centre for unaccompanied minors, increasing the accommodation capacity from 13 to 26 children, and enhancing the quality of support services offered to children.

By January 2019 both locations were ready and began welcoming refugees.

The centre in Loures can accommodate up to 90 people.

About the Migrant and Refugee Fund

- Established in October 2015.
- Supports CEB member states to accommodate and integrate migrants and refugees who arrive on their territories.
- All projects funded by the MRF must comply with the European Convention on Human Rights and the European Social Charter.
- Twenty-two CEB member states have contributed to the MRF; the CEB and the European Investment Bank have also provided funding.
- Total funds raised exceed € 28 million and all MRF resources have been allocated to projects benefitting migrants and refugees.

The Loures facility includes open spaces and living rooms.

The Lisbon facility now accommodates double the number of refugees; it also features a new Library and Study Centre and an office for individual counselling.

Integrate, rehabilitate, regenerate

Urban regeneration is a priority for the Government of Portugal. Urban regeneration is included in the Partnership Agreement between Portugal and the European Commission for 2014-2020, and it has even created a special instrument – Instrumento Financeiro de Reabilitação e Revitalização Urbanas/ Financial Instrument for Urban Rehabilitation and Revitalization (IFRRU) 2020 – to mobilise public and private funding to support key initiatives.

Portugal is facing increasing poverty and social exclusion in urban areas, as well as large regional disparities as a whole. With an investment gap estimated at €1.4 billion, the Government has been taking action to regenerate urban areas.

What is IFRRU 2020?

IFRRU 2020 brings together different sources of funding to support urban rehabilitation investment throughout Portugal. This has included an €80 million loan from the CEB, European funds from PORTUGAL 2020 (funding from seven EU-funded operational programmes), EIB, Portuguese public funds, and commercial banking resources.

IFRRU 2020 focuses on rehabilitating public and private buildings in run-down urban, historic and industrial areas and in disadvantaged communities. These centres often have an ageing and disadvantaged population. By improving the physical infrastructure, investing in energy efficiency measures, and creating job opportunities, the investment aims to revitalise these urban areas.

How it works

Any type of beneficiary, whether individual or collective, public or private, can apply for funding. Loans are provided under exceptionally advantageous conditions compared to those existing in the market.

Managing IFRRU 2020

IFRRU 2020 was set up in 2015. The IFRRU Management Structure is responsible for the management and monitoring of the Financial Instrument while an Investment Committee is in charge of the appraisal and approval of the investment policy and the action programme.

Find out more at: <https://ifrru.ihru.pt>.

Positive outcomes

As of 31st March 2019, 320 buildings have been rehabilitated and 1,479 jobs have been created under IFRRU.

About the CEB EU co-financing facility

The EU co-financing facility is one of the CEB's financing instruments which allows for the co-financing and/or ex-ante financing of EU-funded investment activities. These are developed in conjunction with different EU financing instruments, directly supporting current EU objectives and facilitating the better absorption of EU funds in the CEB's priority sectors.

Key projects

1 Rehabilitation of residential and commercial buildings in Funchal, Madeira

Some 52 buildings in Funchal, the capital city of Portugal's Madeira archipelago, have been rehabilitated through IFRRU, which will result in an annual reduction in CO2 emissions by 119 tonnes.

2 Tourist infrastructure in Gaia

Gaia – a city of about 178,000 people, located south of the city of Porto – is known for the cellars in which port wine is stored and aged. In response to a rise in tourism, this project will rehabilitate old wine storage buildings on the Douro River to become part of a museum and park complex dedicated to the history of Oporto wine and cork.

3 Turning a factory into modern office space in Trofa

The disused former factory of Rafia in Trofa – an industrial town in north Portugal of some 33,000 inhabitants - has been retrofitted and transformed into modern offices, ready to welcome new staff.

“By improving the physical infrastructure, investing in energy efficiency measures, and creating job opportunities, the investment aims to revitalise distressed urban areas.”

Making Europe more equal for all

Info talks to Tomáš Boček, the CEB's new Vice-Governor for Target Group Countries¹ – namely 22 CEB member countries in Central, Eastern and South Eastern Europe – on his priorities, and ideas for promoting social cohesion and equality.

Info: You were the Special Representative of the Council of Europe Secretary General on Migration and Refugees. If you were to pick one activity that had a significant, direct impact on the everyday lives of migrants and refugees in Europe, what would it be and why?

TB: I would select one of the activities associated with migrant and refugee children as this is what I focused on. I prepared (and later implemented) the Action Plan on Protecting Refugee and Migrant Children, which was then adopted by the Committee of Ministers.

There are many actions included in the Plan which have had a direct impact on the situation of migrant and refugee children but if I were to pick one, it would be the European Qualification Passport for Refugees. Many refugees cannot prove their education qualifications because they were not able to bring relevant documents with them, or they lost them on the way. This initiative has allowed them to get a job or continue their studies. Specifically, young people could continue their education or pursue a professional track of their desire. And all that based on a document, a 'passport', issued to migrants and refugees by an independent commission following an interview.

Info: How do you see your new role as CEB's Vice-Governor for Target Countries, and what are your priorities?

TB: My role is to assist the CEB Governor in any activities associated with the Target Group Countries. My primary objective comes with the mandate to enhance the Bank's profile as a leading social cohesion and development institution in Europe, through close cooperation with the Target Group Countries. One way to do that is to take a close look, on the ground, at the social challenges faced by our members, and discuss and agree on solutions that the Bank may be best placed to finance. This is why I plan to meet with representatives of the Target Group Countries in the next few months.

“I intend to play my part and contribute to strengthening existing cooperation agreements with our partners to enhance social cohesion in Europe.”

Info: In the context of current European challenges, how could the CEB further support Target Group Countries to deliver social cohesion and reduce inequalities?

TB: The challenges faced by Target Group Countries are the same as those faced by Europe in general and include climate change, labour market shifts, increasing health and education investment needs, rising inequalities, and increasing social polarization. The CEB has the means to assist Europe tackle such challenges. Given the complexity of these challenges and the associated investment needs, a coordinated approach is vital. Multilateral financial and international institutions, donors, and governments need to cooperate. CEB-managed initiatives such as the Regional Housing Programme or the Migrant and Refugee Fund are good examples of what the CEB can do from this perspective, and I intend to play my part and contribute to strengthening existing cooperation agreements with our partners in order to enhance social cohesion in Europe.

TOMÁŠ BOČEK

Appointed Vice-Governor for Target Group Countries on 29th March 2019; began his mandate on 2nd May 2019.

Previous roles include: Special Representative of the Secretary General of the Council of Europe on Migration and Refugees; Ambassador and Permanent Representative of the Czech Republic to the Council of Europe; Vice-Chairperson of the Governing Board of the CEB; Deputy Minister for International Relations and EU Affairs at the Ministry of Justice of the Czech Republic.

Studied Law at West Bohemian University in Pilsen and has a postgraduate diploma (DEA) in International Public Law from the Faculty of Law of Université Paris 1 Panthéon – Sorbonne.

Sharing knowledge, driving solutions

In 2017, 138 million Europeans were financially cut off from society – without a bank account or any method of payment.¹ Those most affected by limited or no access to financial services are the elderly, the unemployed, migrants and refugees, the less educated and the less well-off.²

Access to finance is key

Financial exclusion, or lack of access to formal financial services, can have significant negative financial, economic and social consequences for the businesses and individuals concerned and for the community at large. It often determines the patterns of household consumption, housing options and the ability to develop a business.

“Microfinance is... a growing sector in many European countries, where it contributes to financial, economic and social inclusion.”

From Supporting Inclusion in Europe Through Microfinance

Microfinance in Europe

Over the past four decades, microfinance has emerged as an effective tool to serve low-income populations in developing countries and, more recently, has been gaining traction in Europe. Less than 10% of the global outstanding microfinance portfolio is in Europe, but it has increasingly become an important instrument for empowering the most vulnerable social groups.³

The CEB has been lending to micro-, small and medium-sized enterprises (MSMEs) in its member countries for over twenty years and has contributed to microfinance operations for over a decade. The CEB can provide funding for microfinance on a wide European level, to all its 41 member countries.

Technical brief: Supporting inclusion in Europe through microfinance

According to its social mandate, the CEB's microfinance lending aims to increase financial and social inclusion and is focused on, but not limited to, creating jobs through self-employment, addressing the needs of vulnerable populations and reducing gender inequality.

This technical brief provides an overview of the role of microloans in supporting social integration in Europe, highlights three key areas of intervention for international institutions, and explores possible further action to address the existing market gaps.

The brief was prepared by Isabelle Brun, Merve Akinci, and Kristina Maslauskaitė (below) working at the CEB Technical Assessment & Monitoring Directorate with contributions from the European Microfinance Network).

CEB support in action

Three recently completed projects financed by the Bank demonstrate the high social impact of our work in promoting health and social cohesion, and generating economic growth.

Helping small businesses thrive

SECTOR: MSMEs
LOCATION: SPAIN

Challenge

This project was created to enable individuals with limited means and with little or no access to the formal credit system, to access financing to start-up or expand a business.

Solution

The CEB worked in partnership with Nuevo MicroBank, granting a €100 million loan, which mobilised €200 million in investments. Potential beneficiaries could access the financing made available by Nuevo MicroBank in three ways:

1. Financial microcredits: These were mainly aimed at people with a sound business plan and the experience to launch a new enterprise or expand an existing one.

2. Social microcredits: These enabled people who need outside support (usually provided by NGOs or municipal-supported business advisory or help agencies) to prepare and launch a sound business plan.

3. Personal and family microcredits: These were designed to support families on low incomes through difficult times.

Results

The project supported more than 14,000 MSMEs. It enabled the creation of 15,706 jobs and maintained 16,211. As well as promoting entrepreneurship and economic growth and employment, this project has enabled individuals and their families to overcome temporary difficulties – thereby improving social cohesion.

Enhancing access to health services

SECTOR: HEALTH

LOCATION: BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA

Challenge

In 2006 just 5% of the population of Bosnia and Herzegovina was registered with a family doctor. The country's primary care infrastructure was under-resourced and not fit for purpose. It needed extensive reform.

Solution

This CEB project was part of a wider healthcare reform programme in Bosnia and Herzegovina which was initiated with support from the World Bank. The World Bank and the local and state authorities covered the cost of policy reforms and medical staff training to set up a family care model in the country, while CEB funds were used to refurbish or rebuild the outdated network of primary care facilities. CEB funds also partially covered the costs associated with new medical and IT equipment.

The CEB approved two loans for the project, worth a total of €19.9 million, plus €2 million in the form of an interest rate subsidy from the CEB's Social Dividend Account.

Results

The programme saw 585 primary care centres built or rehabilitated, and by the end of the second phase of the project (2018), 80.2% of the population were registered with family doctors - 10% above the programme's initial target.

Key facts

14,000 MSMEs

585 primary care centres

2600 housing units

A home for everyone

SECTOR: SOCIAL HOUSING LOCATION: NORTH-RHINE WESTPHALIA, GERMANY

Challenge

The federal state of North-Rhine Westphalia was experiencing an increase in social housing needs associated with a rise in unemployment and a reduction in social housing stock. The reduced availability of social housing was the result of existing dwellings reaching the end of their legally capped social rent regime period.

Solution

The CEB approved a loan of €150 million for the partial financing of NRW.BANK's subsidised housing loan programme. The aim was to increase the social housing stock under rent control schemes by rehabilitating/retrofitting existing buildings and constructing new ones.

The CEB financing supported NRW Bank in granting long-term, fixed-rate loans to housing providers in exchange for their commitment to rent their dwellings to low-income households, students, and vulnerable people at pre-defined, sub-market rates.

Results

This programme created more than 2,600 housing units for subsidised rent.
