2015: a record year for asylum

Evolution of number of new asylum seekers, 1980-2015

- In 2015, 1.5 million asylum requests in OECD, 1.3 m in Europe
- 4.8 million refugees are in the neighbouring countries of Syria including 2.75 m in Turkey, 1.1 m in Lebanon and 640k in Jordan.
- In the first 4 months of 2016, inflows are higher than those for the same period of 2015, but the numbers have been declining rapidly since March. Syria is by far the most important origin country, followed by Afghanistan and Iraq.

In per-capita terms, Sweden, Austria and Germany have received the highest number of asylum seekers in 2015.

Australia, Canada and the United States have also sizeable resettlement programmes and have increased their resettlement places for Syrians in 2015.

Canada alone received more than 25 thousand Syrians in just four months between end of 2015 and April 2016.

Specific challenges for social infrastructure

I. Strong concentration in certain communities
II. Strong variation in the capacity of local reception and integration infrastructure
III. Increased pressure on local (social) housing market and education system
IV. Financing systems do not always ensure that the cost is fully reimbursed
V. Co-ordination, both within and across levels of government
Provide activation and integration services as soon as possible for humanitarian migrants and asylum seekers with high prospects of being allowed to stay.

Facilitate labour market access for asylum seekers with high prospects of being allowed to stay.

Factor employment prospects into dispersal policies.

Record and assess humanitarian migrants’ foreign qualifications, work experience and skills.

Take into account the growing diversity of humanitarian migrants and develop tailor-made approaches.

Identify mental and physical health issues early and provide adequate support.

Develop support programmes specific to unaccompanied minors who arrive past the age of compulsory schooling.

Build on civil society to integrate humanitarian migrants.

Promote equal access to integration services to humanitarian migrants across the country.

Acknowledge that the integration of very poorly educated humanitarian migrants requires long-term training and support.
